December 2011

Bonjour! Wow, 2011 is quickly coming to an end ! What a blessed year it has been! I have had the opportunity to go to Haiti 4 times this year, thanks to some very generous friends. Each trip was a unique experience but I think the message behind every trip was “relationships”. Relationships are so important, sharing Jesus’ love with others is what life is all about. I’ve become a familiar face in Haiti and it is awesome to walk through the crowd of kids and hear “Madame Deb”, and turn to see a familiar smiling face or an outstretched arm!! I can’t even describe the feeling except to say it fills my heart up!

I’ve been part of medical teams, helping in the pharmacy & scribing for the doctor; I traveled with a building team that built 2 homes; while they were building me & 3 women were in the clinic organizing and painting (the Extreme Clinic Makeover). I got to love on some babies & play with the kids at the Orphanage! I took pictures of new students so we can get sponsors for them, spent time in the preschool and sewed prayer quilts with some women from the village.

Meet Luc Kenley. Last year when my mom passed away, some very special people sponsored him to go to school for one year, in her memory. Her memory lives on in many ways, but her life has now touched a child in Haiti! I will continue to sponsor him so that he can get an education and someday help his family. What a wonderful way to honor a loved one!

Please continue to pray I find more sponsors for my financial support. I am at 56% of my current goal. God continues to provide! Please contact me if you would like to be part of my financial support team.

I now have a website, so come visit me there! www.mtmdeb.com

I pray you have a blessed & Merry Christmas
